A KILLING SEASON

A RACHEL PORTER MYSTERY

A Killing Season (Rachel Porter #6)

Jessica Speart

Agressive and independent, agent Rachel Porter has lengthly been a thorn within the facet of the united states Fish and flora and fauna carrier -- and for her sins, she's been assigned to distant Montana. during this cold, windswept state of personal militias and survivalists, grizzlies are being killed at an alarming rate. And whereas following up on a rumor that somebody from the neighborhood Blackfeet tribe is responsible, Rachel uncovers a fair extra poor truth: local americans are mysteriously disappearing as well. during this land that the A Killing Season (Rachel Porter #6) Unabomber referred to as home, it seems that endangered animals and people are both reasonable game. And the subsequent casualty may be one gutsy natural world agent who refuses to enable snoozing bears lie.

i used to be excited to discover an writer who had a sequence just like certainly one of my favourite secret sequence writer - Nevada Barr. changing Barr's Park Ranger Anna Pigeon with Speart's Fish & natural world Agent Rachel Porter looked like my notion of a dream come true!But whereas the basis for either writers is the same, the end result from this reader was once a long way different!Simply put, Speart is not any Barr. Her writing variety is much less polished, her plot's are obvious to the purpose of being ridiculous (I had the A Killing Season (Rachel Porter #6) "bad guys" pegged mid-way through). when it comes to personality development, this can be the place Speart relatively hit rock bottom. Her major protagonist - Rachel Porter - used to be shallow and irritating. i did not deal with her as a reader may still care. i would not suggest this sequence A Killing Season (Rachel Porter #6) to a A Killing Season (Rachel Porter #6) person who likes Nevada Barr or Dana Stebenow - you can be disappointed!
