

Dino Campana Orphic Songs

Translated by I. L. Salomon

Pocket Poets Series Number 54

Orphic Songs (City Lights Pocket Poets Series, #54)

Dino Campana

Dino Campana wrote the unique, visionary masterwork of Italian literature Orphic Songs whilst he was once in his twenties. The originality, rapturous language, and weird great thing about his poetry make him as very important Orphic Songs (City Lights Pocket Poets Series, #54) to Orphic Songs (City Lights Pocket Poets Series, #54) twentieth-century poetry as García Lorca or Mayakovsky. Campana was once the wild guy of Italian poetry in 1914, at the eve of worldwide warfare I. The warfare stored a few younger Italians from uprising and from Fascism, yet no longer Campana. continually an outsider, he used to be a vagabond who labored from time to time as a gaucho, miner, fireman, organ-grinder, janitor, circus tumbler, horse groomer, and a wandering musician with a Gypsy band. He died Orphic Songs (City Lights Pocket Poets Series, #54) in Castel Pulci, a psychiatric hospital, in 1932.

“L’orfismo di Campana è più dionisiaco che apollineo, Orphic Songs (City Lights Pocket Poets Series, #54) più tormentato che sereno, più creazione che contemplazione, più ricordo fantastico che memoria; cede volentieri al e ai vagabondaggi notturni e visionari del sonnambulo; ed è fittamente popolato di oggetti e simboli, di luoghi mitici e di miti mistici, barbari e selvaggi.” – R. Martinoni “una sensibilità un poco torbida ma che palpava il mondo al di là del convenzionale” – G. Papini “non valgo in materia probabilmente in line with altra cosa che in step with l’amore vivace e costante che sento according to tutte le manifestazioni dell’arte” – D.
